doubt for a moment that Governor Des Vocux would use that discretion fairly, but the best of mortals may cirr, and it is possible we might get a Governor who was more amenable to the influence of Chinese officials. The danger to which woll-conducted reaidents are exposed from the envy and hatred of Chinese officials is a real one, and we wish to see them protected by the law and not merely by the discretion of the Governor. Many of our traders are necessarily brought into relations with the petty mundaring along the coast, and anyone who knows the cumping with which such petty officers can invent means of squeezing will comprehend the anxiety which is felt here. and apart from these regular traders there are in this Colony, we believe, not a few who earn-we cannot say an honest livelihood, but at any rate a livelihood by amuggling goods into China. Now although we caunot sympathise much with this class, it is the duty of the Government to see that they are not rendited on false charges of murder, burglary, &c. There are also numerous political or semi-political refugees, members of some of the innumerable secret societies with which Chinais honey-combed. It might not be worth while straining our relations with China for these latter classes, were it impossible to give her satisfaction manner more consistent with British notions of justice. But we think it is possible to find a solution which would rid us of the rogues and still safeguard the respectable and even semi-respectable Chinese in the Colony. Instead of making, by law, all and sundry liable to be rendited on documents, the truth of which we have no means of ascertaining, it is worth considering whether it would not be better to allow the Executive the power of summarily banishing men known to the police as bad characters and who cre known to have no settled occupation. By this means we do not necessarily hand them over to torture and execution. We simply tell them they are not wanted as colonists. and they can take the chance of losing their hoads in China. There is ample precedent Heat, it affords instant relief, and will be for this course, About two years ago, when the Tried Society was causing trouble in Hongkong, a dozen or two of worthless characters, having no claim to citizenship, were summarily banished. This is a large power to entrust to the Executive, but we think the course is preferable to handing. over refugees after a mockery of a trial. Even if it were open to less objections, we doubt if the new ordinance will help us to get rid of the rogues very smartly. The Governor did not explain to what extent, if any, a defence might be set up; but whether a defence can be gone into or not, we believe there is atundant room for delay and obstruction within the four corners of the new Bill.

SOOCHOW. 7th May. There has been much excitement during the last two days in the city over the arrival of 800 unwolcome guests. It seems after the Paiping Rebellion that a number near Quensan. Since then they have been to come to his Yam u. 'We will all come.'

He informed the Governor and the flourishing colony, men, boats, farming utensils, cows and fowls, was pursuaded by a fer companies of infantry to change their bar of operations. They appeared at the gate of the provincial capital, a fine lot of able Henry Ernest Wodehouse, Esq. to permit bodied men, with good-natured counter ances and only asked for 'rice.' The official gave them 200 cash spiece and asked the as was also my application to examine the to go. They said this would not last the chief clerk at the Magiatracy respecting the long. bed, ore at all events his bedroom, with a nick headache whenever the subject was mentioned.

He said ! Let us talk of pleasant things. Is the world not full enough of misery, that we must always be barping on any little inpleasanthess ? and then he would retire. One of our troubles is we have nowhere to walk off our troubles here. If we could only build a nice little Bund like what they have got now in Ningpo we often think we all should be happy. But for that united action is necessary, and an application to the Chinese. And that our Cousul deprecates. He always says: Why apply to the Chinese? Why worry? Do we not pain them sufficiently by our presence?

That is such a strange light in which to ook at the matter, we none of us know what to say. It is true we have started a little Hospital here, and free Schools, and a Dispensary, and the place was povertystricken in the extreme when we came to it. and is now doing tidily. We circulate a good deal of money in it between us, and all the carpenters and brickingers and masons in the place seem to be employed by the European community. But I am not sure that our presence does not pain them for all that. They always use rough words to us when we walk out, and some times we are stoned. And there are several parts we never think of going into for fear of what may happen to us. And one of the missionaries was sadly beaten about the head in his own house only the other day, and Miss Y - was spat upon, by a very well dressed Chinaman too. It does not look uld have killed the painful subject. So let us pass on t What L wanted to tell you about was how the British Minister arrived on his biennial tour of inspection.

He came in grand style in a gunboat, and with quite a retinue with him. But if he had been the servant of the people, paid to look after their interests, he could not have The spoon competition at 300 yards, ten gone more carefully, into all the subjects that were perplexing us. At his request the Consul at once communicated with the title deads, and he at bace said they were was a little corner they were leaving out they might enclose. But Mr J-said he did not care to do so, because it was a convenience to the poor women, being near a pool when they wanted to wash their clothes. So then the Tipao made the people a speech, and told them how generous and considerate Mr J. was, and rebuked them most severely for their previous disorderly behaviour, and told them that they should all be sent to prison if anything of the kind occurred again. Then it turned out that the poor landlord was released from prison the very day His Excellency arrived, and a handsome present made him as compensation. So there was no need to say anything about that. And since then there has been nathing but a continuous exchange of civilities, such a hurrying backwards and forwards of sedan chairs, all the exccutioners of the place out in their hideous red conical hats, and the soldiers and titlebearers all about all day long. His Excellency without anyone pointing it out to of Northerners settled on the wild lands him himself noticed our want of a Bund. and said how easily we could combine joined by disbanded soldiers and these together to make it. The Chinase formed a colony to themselves enjoying all authorities were quite pleased at the the rights and immunities of equatter suggestion, and the Profect even sent two severeignty."
